

Week 5 - I just started.

Emily: Ow. - Excusez-moi! [sighs] - [woman] Laurent! Sybil!

[in Mandarin] Apologize to the lady! [in French] I'm sorry. Can I buy you another one?

Emily: Sorry, I don't _____ French.

Mindy: Ah, American?

Emily: Yes. But did you think that I was French?

Mindy: Honestly, no. I was being polite. You... look American. Are you _____ Indiana?

Emily: Chicago.

Mindy: Oh. I was close. I went to junior high in Indianapolis.

Emily: Oh, cool. No _____! Why?

Mindy: Mm-hm. Ah, long story. Very boring. [chuckles] The story and... Indianapolis.

But the _____, they look like you. Nice.

Emily: Are those your children?

Mindy: No, I'm their nanny. [in Mandarin] Laurent! Stay where I can see you.

I'm teaching _____ Mandarin.

Emily: How long have you been here?

Mindy: Uh... almost a year. From Shanghai.

But my mother's from Korea. Another long, boring _____.

Emily: Do you love it?

Mindy: Uh, yes, of course I love Paris.

And the food is so delicious. - [Emily] Mm. The fashion, so chic.

The lights, so magical. But the _____... so mean.

Emily: I mean, they can't all be mean.

Mindy: Oh, yes, they can. Chinese people are mean behind your _____.

French people, mean to your face. - [Emily] Mm. But you're on vacation here, so...

Emily: Oh, no. Actually, I _____ here. I have a job with a French marketing firm.

Mindy: Seriously?

Emily: Yeah.

Mindy: Well, so you know.

Emily: Well, I just started.

Mindy: Oh. Do you have any _____ in Paris?

Emily: Uh, no. Um... but my boyfriend's coming next week to visit, so...

Mindy: Are you lonely?

Emily: No... uh... Sometimes.

Mindy: Give me your _____. Okay, so here's my number.

If you're lonely, you text me, we have dinner. I'm Mindy.

Emily: Nice to meet you.

Mindy: French people _____ this. - Oh. Mwah. Mwah. - [chuckles]

Sybil! Laurent! [in French] You're not my mother! - I want an ice cream!

back do friends from girls people phone speak story them way work

-----Key-----

Week 5 - I just started.

Emily: Ow. - Excusez-moi! [sighs] - [woman] Laurent! Sybil!

[in Mandarin] Apologize to the lady! [in French] I'm sorry. Can I buy you another one?

Emily: Sorry, I don't speak French.

Mindy: Ah, American? -

Emily: Yes. But did you think that I was French?

Mindy: Honestly, no. I was being polite. You... look American. Are you from Indiana?

Emily: Chicago.

Mindy: Oh. I was close. I went to junior high in Indianapolis.

Emily: Oh, cool. No way! Why?

Mindy: Mm-hm. Ah, long story. Very boring. [chuckles] The story and... Indianapolis.

But the girls, they look like you. Nice.

Emily: Are those your children?

Mindy: No, I'm their nanny. [in Mandarin] Laurent! Stay where I can see you.

I'm teaching them Mandarin.

Emily: How long have you been here?

Mindy: Uh... almost a year. From Shanghai.

But my mother's from Korea. Another long, boring story.

Emily: Do you love it?

Mindy: Uh, yes, of course I love Paris.

And the food is so delicious. - [Emily] Mm. The fashion, so chic.

The lights, so magical. But the people... so mean.

Emily: I mean, they can't all be mean.

Mindy: Oh, yes, they can. Chinese people are mean behind your back.

French people, mean to your face. - [Emily] Mm. But you're on vacation here, so...

Emily: Oh, no. Actually, I work here. I have a job with a French marketing firm.

Mindy: Seriously?

Emily: Yeah.

Mindy: Well, so you know.

Emily: Well, I just started.

Mindy: Oh. Do you have any friends in Paris?

Emily: Uh, no. Um... but my boyfriend's coming next week to visit, so...

Mindy: Are you lonely?

Emily: No... uh... Sometimes.

Mindy: Give me your phone. Okay, so here's my number.

If you're lonely, you text me, we have dinner. I'm Mindy.

Emily: Nice to meet you.

Mindy: French people do this. - Oh. Mwah. Mwah. - [chuckles]

Sybil! Laurent! [in French] You're not my mother! - I want an ice cream!