

Week 15 - I'm sorry, but they're quite busy.

Sir, there's something you'll wanna see.

Next case, please.

Laufeyson. Variant L1130, AKA Loki Laufeyson,

is charged with sequence violation 7-20-89.

(1)_____ do you plead?

Madam, a god doesn't plead.

This has been a very enjoyable pantomime, but I'd like to go home now.

Are you guilty or not guilty, sir?

Guilty of (2)_____ the God of Mischief? Yes.

Guilty of finding all this incredibly tedious? Yes.

Guilty of a crime against the Sacred Timeline?

Absolutely not, you have the (3)_____ person.

Oh, really? And who should we have?

I suspect, the Avengers.

I came into possession of the Tesseract because they traveled through time, no (4)_____ in a last-ditch effort to stave off my ascent to God King.

That's quite an accusation.

Oh, believe me, you can smell the cologne of two Tony Starks.

You speak of Time Criminals? It's they you should be after.

Perhaps you could (5)_____ me with a taskforce and resources, and I could return and eliminate them for you.

We're not here to talk about the Avengers.

- Oh, no? - No.

What they did was supposed to happen. You (6)_____ was not.

Right. Uh...

"Not supposed to happen"? According to whom?

The Time-Keepers?

Oh, the Time-Keepers. Right.

Well, perhaps I should speak to these Time-Keepers, gods to gods.

I'm (7)_____, but they're quite busy.

Oh, they are? What are they doing?

Dictating the proper flow of time.

I see. Right. And then what do you do?

Dictate the proper flow of time according to their dictations.

How do you plead?

Guilty...

of this.

- What's going on? - Hang on. Everyone quiet.

- He's trying to use his (8)_____, ma'am. - Don't rush me.

Damn it! Why won't it work?

Magic powers? They're no good in the TVA, Mr. Laufeyson.

The court finds you guilty, and I sentence you to be reset.

Next case, please!

"Reset"? What does that mean? What, is it bad? What does it mean?

being doubt escaping How powers provide sorry wrong

-----Key-----

Week 15 - I'm sorry, but they're quite busy.

Sir, there's something you'll wanna see.

Next case, please.

Laufeyson. Variant L1130, AKA Loki Laufeyson,

is charged with sequence violation 7-20-89.

How do you plead?

Madam, a god doesn't plead.

This has been a very enjoyable pantomime, but I'd like to go home now.

Are you guilty or not guilty, sir?

Guilty of being the God of Mischief? Yes.

Guilty of finding all this incredibly tedious? Yes.

Guilty of a crime against the Sacred Timeline?

Absolutely not, you have the wrong person.

Oh, really? And who should we have?

I suspect, the Avengers.

I came into possession of the Tesseract because they traveled through time, no doubt in a last-ditch effort to stave off my ascent to God King.

That's quite an accusation.

Oh, believe me, you can smell the cologne of two Tony Starks.

You speak of Time Criminals? It's they you should be after.

Perhaps you could provide me with a taskforce and resources, and I could return and eliminate them for you.

We're not here to talk about the Avengers.

- Oh, no? - No.

What they did was supposed to happen. You escaping was not.

Right. Uh...

"Not supposed to happen"? According to whom?

The Time-Keepers?

Oh, the Time-Keepers. Right.

Well, perhaps I should speak to these Time-Keepers, gods to gods.

I'm sorry, but they're quite busy.

Oh, they are? What are they doing?

Dictating the proper flow of time.

I see. Right. And then what do you do?

Dictate the proper flow of time according to their dictations.

How do you plead?

Guilty...

of this.

- What's going on? - Hang on. Everyone quiet.

- He's trying to use his powers, ma'am. - Don't rush me.

Damn it! Why won't it work?

Magic powers? They're no good in the TVA, Mr. Laufeyson.

The court finds you guilty, and I sentence you to be reset.

Next case, please!

"Reset"? What does that mean? What, is it bad? What does it mean?